The Judson Celebration

The W. M. U. of the Baptist Church will hold this celebration at the Baptist Church Sunday night, Feb. 20, and they ought to have a very interesting program.

The unveiling of Judson's picture. Songs by the different societies.

Be sure to come out and learn what is it; why is it; when is it.

The movement in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the going of Adoniram Judson, the first missionary from America to go to a foreign field, hence the name—"Judson Centennial Movement."

It begun in 1912. It has been going on ever since—it is going on now; but this convention year closes it. Now is the only time left.

If we help, the help must be now.

STAR THEATRE

FEB. 16, 1916

THE M'CORDS.

Mr. and Mrs. McCord give an evening of entertainment and fun and a proper balance of classical music and of the deeper sentiments.

The program opens with a humorous sketch entitled "I Tried So Hard to Be Nice." This is a story of the young husband who, without realizing it, has become indifferent and cross toward his wife. Reading in the newspaper of a case just like his, he decides to begin at once to be a model husband. When his wife returns and finds him so courteous and attentive and the presents begin coming from the florists, candy shop and the dry goods store she cannot understand it at all. The expected complications result.

Following the opening sketch Mrs. McCord usually sings a group of songs. Mr. McCord playing her accompaniment on the piano. Mr. McCord then gives Irvin Cobb's humorous version of classical music. He also usually gives a character monologue, Jewish or German.

As a part of Mrs. McCord's work she sings and plays the alto part on the violin as an obligato. Her pianologues when she relieves Mr. McCord at the piano are very entertaining and delightfully well done.

The program usually closes with a costume sketch.

The Okolona Farm Products Association asks you to join in with us and plant one or more acres of Irish potatoes, in order that we may secure an advance contract with reliable firms. We meet Saturday, Feb. 12, at 2 o'clock, at the Okolona court house. Come and bring your neighbors.

Finds Boll Weevil Hibernates in Seed

A. & M. College, Miss.

That a great many boll weevils spend their winters inside the cotton seed well protected from the weather, is the discovery just made by Dr. H. B. Brown, in charge of plant breeding at the Mississippi A. & M. college experiment station.

This scientist, therefore, is urging the farmers to look carefully into their seed before planting to make sure they are not planting the pest that will destroy the crop. He advises against buying cottonseed from weevil infested territory, and suggests that the seed be treated with carbon bisulphide before planting in order that the pest may be destroyed.

On investigation, Dr. Brown discovered that large numbers of the cotton boll weevil pass through the winter in this way having apparently entered the seeds after they were mature as the seed hulls, are in a normal condition. Some of the seeds were hollowed out completely while in other seed kernels looked as if the weevil had just been boring it. The weevils were alive and active when found.

Reasoning from the number of weevils found in the amount of seed examined, Dr. Brown estimates that there are fifty weevils in every bushel of seed. Of this number a large quantity will doubtless live to reproduce the next season.

"Without a doubt," he says, this method of hibernation is one of the important factors in spreading the weevil to new localities through shipment of cottonseed and cotton seed bolls from infested districts. In cases where cottonseed is shipped from regions of heavy infection to weevil-free regions or where, yet abundant, it is advisable to fumigate them. Even in regions infested with weevil, if it is suspected that the seed contain many, it may be advisable to fumigate them before planting.

"The cottonseed furnish a safe place for hibernation and since cottonseed is rarely ever planted deep too deep for the weevil to emerge, it gives the weevil the further advantage of being right on the ground even before the first square appears in the spring."

The state entomologist, R. W. Harned, suggests the following methods of destroying the weevils in the seed: Place the sacks of seed in a tight bin or box, and then pour in a half pint of carbon bisulphide into each sack. Then seal the bin up as nearly air-tight as possible and leave sealed for 24 hours. This will give time for the fumigant to penetrate to all parts of the seed.

Coughs and Colds are Dangerous!

One out of every three people die of Lung Diseases—all started with a Cough.

Delightful U. D. C. Meeting

Mrs. D. G. Deavenport was most charming hostess of the Okolona Chapter No. 117 at her home on Tuesday afternoon, February 1st. Despite the driving snow storm, which was beautiful in its grandeur, quite a number of members attended this meeting. Upon entering the drawing-room, the guests were seated in a semicircle around a churrying blazing fire.

After several discussions, the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Walter Smith, President. Mrs. Fannie Clark opened the meeting with a most impressive prayer. The program for the afternoon dealt with the following subjects: History of the Confederate Flag—Mrs. Reeder. Important events during the Civil War—Mrs. Abernethy. Why should the Confederate Museum at Richmond, Virginia enlist our support?—Mrs. McDowell.

Mrs. Gordon recited a beautiful selection to the enjoyment of all present. She also had with her a tie that was presented to Col. Gordon during the war, which was pretty and interesting. On each end of the tie (which was made of black silk) was worked a confederate flag. During the raid through the South, this tie was stolen from his trunk. He never thought of ever being able to recover it. Evidently his notable speech before the senate a few years ago aroused a sleeping conscience, for shortly after his return home the tie came to him one day, neatly done up in a little package, with no name of the sender attached, but the envelope showed post mark from some place in Illinois.

Mrs. Pannell had with her the first piece of money her father earned after the war. Of course these things added interest to a most enjoyable meeting.

Before adjourning a delicious refreshment was served.

The next meeting will be the first Friday in March.

Whenever You Need a General Tonic Take Grove's

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is equally valuable as a General Tonic because it contains the well known tonic properties of QUININE and IRON. It acts on the Liver, Drives out Malaria, Enriches the Blood and Builds up the Whole System. 50 cents.
